INTRODUCTION

This booklet recognizes the Scottish athletes who have won medals at major championships while representing Scotland or as part of the Great Britain & Northern Ireland team.

The first Scottish athletes to win medals in international competition were in the inaugural International Cross Country Championships of 1903, where the six scoring Scottish team members won the bronze medal. It may be churlish to observe that only 4 nations competed – the 4 home countries.

Three years later, Wyndham Halswelle and John McGough, both won silver medals at the Olympic Games of 1906 on 30 April.

Born in Ireland, John McGough moved to Scotland when only six months old and became the leading Scottish middle distance runner in the early years of the century. Living and working as a postman in the Gorbals district of Glasgow, he joined Bellahouston Harriers and won their 1900 cross-country title. At one time he held every Scottish record from 1000 yards to 4 miles. He won a total of 12 Scottish AAA titles: 880 yards (1903-04, 1907); mile (1902-07, 1910), and 4 miles (1902-03). At Ibrox Stadium on 20 June 1903, McGough won the half-mile, mile and 4-miles titles all in the same afternoon. He was also the Irish AAA champion at both 2 and 3 miles in 1905 and at one mile in 1907. He finished as runner-up at three successive AAA Championships (1904-06). This was undoubtedly his best distance and he won a silver medal in the 1500 at the 1906 Olympic Games.

After a notable athletic career at Charterhouse and the RMC, Sandhurst Wyndham Halswelle was commissioned into the Highland Light Infantry in 1901. When the HLI returned to Edinburgh from the Boer War, Halswelle took up the sport in earnest. In 1904, he won the 1904 Army 880 yards championship. In 1905 he turned to quarter-miling and won the AAA and Scottish titles. In 1906, Halswelle won a silver medal in the 400 and bronze in the 800 metres at the Olympic Games in Athens and, on his return for the British season, he won the 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards and the 880 yards all on the same afternoon at the Scottish Championships.

Two years later, in the Olympic year of 1908, he set a world record of 31.2 seconds for 300 yards and then posted a British 440 yards record of 48.4 seconds before facing the world's best at the Olympic Games in London. Halswelle was the fastest qualifier and faced three Americans in the final. The race was not run in lanes and the starter warned the runners against jostling, but coming into the home-straight, the American John Carpenter blocked off Halswelle, was disqualified, and a re-run was ordered. The re-run, in lanes this time, was set but Robbins and Taylor, the other Americans, sided with the disqualified Carpenter and refused to run. Halswelle appeared alone and won the 1908 Olympic 400 metre title on a walk-over. He thus became the first Briton to win gold, silver and bronze medals in individual Olympic events.

However, Arthur Robertson is generally recognised to have been the first Scot to win a gold medal. Born in Sheffield, England, he was the son of a Glasgow doctor and educated at Kelvinside Academy, Glasgow, before moving to King's School, Peterborough, as a 14-year-old. In March 1908, Robertson won the English and the International cross country titles (that victory is not recognised in the following lists as he was representing England at the time). At the Games, he won a gold medal in the 3-mile team race, in which he individually finished second, a silver medal in the steeplechase and was fifth in the 5 miles.

In 1930, the first British Empire Games were held in Hamilton, Canada, and Scotland were one of 10 countries competing in athletics and on day two of the track and field programme, Scotland won their only medal of the Games as Duncan McLeod Wright, the current AAA champion, was a comfortable winner of the marathon, finishing approximately 3<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> minutes ahead of England's Sam Ferris. Four years later, Scotland's team at the London Games included 6 women athletes and the women's relay team became the first female medal winners for Scotland, finishing 3rd in the 660 yards relay. It was the easiest medal of the event to win, there being only 3 competitors.

Since then, Scotland's medal tally has increased to 421 in individual events as can be seen from the above table, which does not include the team medals awarded in cross country, road, hill and ultra-running. The development of Paralympic Athletics has been a major contributory factor to the above total, with 151 medals coming from that source.

COMMONWEALTH GAMES

The Commonwealth Games are the only major track and field championships in which Scotland take part in their own right, rather than Scottish athletes being part of a British team. The Games are held every four years, first took place as the British Empire Games in 1930, before changing to the British Empire and Commonwealth Games, the British Commonwealth Games and, since 1978, under its current title. Scottish athletes who have won medals at these Championships are:

WORLD HALF MARATHON CHAMPIONSHIPS

The IAAF World Half Marathon Championships is held every two years. It was contested annually from 1992 to 2010 (briefly replaced by the IAAF World Road Running Championships in 2006 and 2007). The competition replaced the female-only IAAF World Women's Road Race Championships, which was held annually from 1983 to 1991.

There has been only one individual Scottish medallist at these events, alongside our marathon medallists who have been shown within the track and field championships.

IAAF WORLD CROSS-COUNTRY CHAMPIONSHIPS

The IAAF World Cross Country Championships is the most important competition in international cross country running. Held annually to 2011 and now every two years, it started in 1973, when it replaced the International Cross Country Championships. Scotland competed in its own right in the competitions until 1987, since when the home nations have competed as part of the Great Britain & Northern Ireland team.

WORLD MOUNTAIN RUNNING CHAMPIONSHIPS

The World Mountain Running Championships were first held in 1985 as the World Mountain Running Trophy. From 1985 to 1992, there were two men's races – a short course and a long course – before the short course race was dropped. Scotland competed as a team until 2008 after which the home nations combined in a GB team.

WORLD LONG-DISTANCE MOUNTAIN RUNNING CHAMPIONSHIPS

The World Long-Distance Mountain Running Championships were introduced in 2004 as the World Long-Distance Mountain Running Challenge. The host for the event changes annually, with the minimum requirements for the challenge being that the course is no longer than 45 kilometres (28 mi) in distance, includes an uphill ascent of at least 1.6 km (1 mile), and has a rough duration of between one hour and forty-five minutes and four hours for the elite men. Scotland competed as a team until 2014 after which the home nations combined in a GB team.

EUROPEAN MOUNTAIN RUNNING CHAMPIONSHIPS

The European Mountain Running Championships has been held annually by the European Athletic Association each year since 1994. It was officially sanctioned as a championship the following year and was run until 2001 as the European Mountain Running Trophy before changing to its current title. Scotland competed as a team until 2001 after which the home nations combined in a GB team.

ULTRA RUNNING

Ultra distance or ultra running covers any race longer than the traditional marathon distance. There are four IAU (International Association of Ultra Runners) World Championships: the IAU 100 km World Championships, IAU 50 km World Championships (formerly the IAU World Trophy to 2014), IAU 24 Hour World Championship, and the IAU Trail World Championship. The IAU hosts annual European Championships for the 50 km, 100 km and 24 hours. Scottish athletes who have won individual medals at these championships are as follows:

PARA ATHLETICS

The main recognised championships for para athletes are the Paralympic Games, first held at Rome in 1960; the World Championships, held every two years since 1994, and the European Championships. In addition, a small number of para events are held within the Commonwealth Games (see separate listing of medalists). Scottish athletes who have won medals at these Championships are:
